

J.P Morgan once said "I don't want a lawyer to tell me what I cannot do. I hire them to tell me how to do what I want to do".

Lawyers in Ireland today face even more challenges than the notoriously demanding financier and philanthropist. The legal profession offers an exciting range of careers that could include overseeing patents for a global pharmaceutical company, preparing complex litigation trials, drawing up defence strategies for criminal cases or recommending new environmental legislation for government policy makers. Regardless of the career path chosen, the market for legal professionals in Ireland has never been as competitive with growth in Private Practice, In-House and the ever increasing need for newly qualified lawyers.

Brightwater's Legal team comprises a mixture of qualified lawyers, law graduates and highly experienced recruitment consultants. Each consultant specialises in a particular legal area affording both job seekers and clients the benefit of their market knowledge. In 2007, Brightwater formed Ireland's first exclusive legal in-house department to service this growing area.

Brightwater's Legal division recruits in the general areas of:

- Legal Practice Firms
- In-House - General Industry
- In-House - Financial Services
- Company Secretarial

The demand for both qualified lawyers and company secretaries has created a candidate driven market. There are countless opportunities within a wide variety of legal areas and firms are constantly expanding to take on new business and develop niche specialist services.

Brightwater's Legal division recruits for the following roles:

Practice

- Salaried Partners
- Senior Associates
- Newly Qualified Solicitors - Practice
